Cassandra Robbins is a visionary leader who is dedicated to empowering young people to make a positive impact on the world. Through her work with Ignite The Disciples, a non-profit organization she founded in 2010, Cassandra has inspired thousands of young people to discover their purpose, develop their leadership skills, and create positive change in their communities.

Cassandra's passion for youth empowerment stems from her own experiences growing up. She was raised in a low-income family in Detroit, and she witnessed firsthand the challenges that many young people face in underprivileged communities. Cassandra realized that young people need opportunities to develop their skills and leadership abilities in order to reach their full potential and make a difference in the world.

In 2010, Cassandra founded Ignite The Disciples with the mission of providing young people with the tools and resources they need to succeed. The organization offers a variety of programs and services, including leadership development workshops, mentoring programs, and community service projects. Ignite The Disciples also works with schools and other organizations to create opportunities for young people to get involved in their communities and make a difference.

Under Cassandra's leadership, Ignite The Disciples has grown into a thriving organization that has impacted the lives of thousands of young people. The organization has been recognized for its work by a number of organizations, including the United Nations and the White House.

Cassandra herself has been named one of the "100 Most Influential African Americans" by The Root and one of the "Top 100 Leaders in STEM" by STEMconnector.

Cassandra's work with Ignite The Disciples is making a real difference in the world. She is inspiring young people to reach their full potential and create positive change in their communities. Cassandra is a true visionary leader who is committed to making the world a better place for all.
