In the face of a 36-year-old dictatorship, a group of Ugandan activists and opposition leaders have come together to form Museveni Must Fall, a movement dedicated to ousting President Yoweri Museveni from power. Museveni has ruled Uganda since 1986, and his regime has been marked by corruption, human rights abuses, and a lack of democracy.

The founding fathers of Museveni Must Fall are a diverse group of Ugandans who are united by their desire to see their country free from dictatorship. They include:

- Bobi Wine, a musician and politician who is the leader of the National Unity Platform, the largest opposition party in Uganda. Wine has been arrested and beaten multiple times by Museveni's security forces, but he has continued to speak out against the regime.
- Kizza Besigye, a former presidential candidate who has been arrested and jailed multiple times for his opposition to Museveni.

Besigye is a respected figure in Uganda, and he has been a vocal critic of the regime for many years.

- Winnie Kiiza, a former member of parliament who was expelled from the ruling party for her criticism of Museveni. Kiiza is a strong advocate for human rights and democracy, and she has been a vocal supporter of the Museveni Must Fall movement.
- Muntu Mugisha, a former army general who was forced to retire after he criticized Museveni's government. Mugisha is a respected figure in Uganda, and he has joined the Museveni Must Fall movement to help bring about change in his country.
- Norbert Mao, a former presidential candidate who is the leader of the Democratic Party, one of the oldest political parties in Uganda. Mao has been a vocal critic of Museveni's regime for many years, and he has joined the Museveni Must Fall movement to help bring about change in his country.

The founding fathers of Museveni Must Fall are risking their lives to bring about change in their country. They are facing arrest, imprisonment, and even death. But they are determined to continue fighting for the freedom of Uganda.

The Museveni Must Fall movement is a growing force in Uganda. It is a movement of Ugandans from all walks of life who are united by their desire to see their country free from dictatorship. The founding fathers of the movement are inspiring Ugandans to stand up for their rights and to demand change. They are showing the world that the Ugandan people are not afraid to fight for their freedom.
