The Black Corleones were founded by Salvatore "Toto" Corleone in the early 1900s. Corleone was a ruthless and ambitious man, and he quickly rose through the ranks of the New York City underworld. By the 1930s, he had become one of the most powerful crime bosses in the city.

Corleone's son, Carlo, took over the family business after his father's death in 1957. Carlo was even more ruthless than his father, and he expanded the family's criminal empire into new territories. The Black Corleones became one of the most feared crime families in the country.

In the 1970s, the Black Corleones were targeted by law enforcement. A series of high-profile arrests and convictions weakened the family, and by the 1980s, they were a shadow of their former selves.

The last of the Black Corleones, Carlo's son Sonny, was convicted of murder in 1993. With Sonny's conviction, the Black Corleones were finally finished.

The Black Corleones were a powerful and destructive force in American history. Their reign of terror lasted for decades, and they left a trail of violence and destruction in their wake. But in the end, they were brought down by the forces of law and order.
